

Conversational leadership

The way forward for next generation leaders

60' free interactive virtual workshop

In today's rapidly shifting commercial landscape, being a good company is no longer good enough. There is now compelling evidence that we need to enter a new era of leadership to keep pace and prosper in a world of accelerating change, disruption and technological advances.

The need to innovate, collaborate and explore better ways of bringing out the very best in our teams is today's challenge and is fast becoming the primary focus of forward-looking leadership.

Seeing the growing number of business failures, including some well-known and respected brands, progressive enterprises are now embarking on a journey from 'good to great', reinventing what the role of leader now entails, both for themselves and for their people.

This workshop will outline some of key shifts that successful businesses are now focused on and will provide you with route map for leadership development

What you will learn?

By participating in this interactive webinar, participants will:

- Explore the latest findings and neuroscience behind high performing businesses and teams
- Be introduced to the importance of 'conversational leadership' and how it works
- Receive specific guidance on how to activate 'higher level communication skills' for greater trust, collaboration and alignment
- Learn the secret of psychological safety as a vital ingredient for innovation, agility and creativity

Who is this for?

This workshop will benefit anyone who is responsible for developing the leadership mindset and capability within their organisation in order to thrive and prosper in a changing world.

This workshop is specifically aimed at people who recognise the importance of building high engagement, innovation rich cultures and meeting the human challenge of creating trust, a shared sense of purpose and a willingness to experiment and innovate.

How you will learn?

This highly interactive and engaging web-session will be run via Zoom. The participative session combines different methodologies including presentation, break-out and brainstorming. We recommend participants connect from an undisturbed space with a stable internet connection, use headphones and have a webcam enabled for the best learning experience.

About the Speaker

David Coleman has been a senior director for two FTSE 100 organisations. He is the author of "The Path to Engagement" and a TEDx speaker.

When will it take place?

Wednesday, 10 February, 16:00 to 17:00 CET

Registration

This session is free and will be limited to 8-12 people to allow for optimal participation.

If you are interested in participating, please register via events@peoplesmart.fr